The artists composing this admirable and renowned singing body have been endowed by nature with superb vocal organs which have been cultivated by consummate art. The public of two continents has endorsed their accomplishments. While the melodies of Sweden-the land that gave birth to Jenny Lind and Christine Nilsson-find a conspicuous place in their concert programmes, their unlimited repertoire ncludes the vocal geme of all nations and the best creations of the master composers. There are rendered with equal facility in English, German, French, Italian and Swedish. Effects are produced vocally by these singer that many might think possible only to skillful orchestration. To say that this effect is delightful is like blending the tints of the rainbow and insisting that the result is beautiful. The fact is selfevident.

Their first American tour under the uspices of the Redpath Lyceum Bureau of Boston was a positive lyric triumph which is fully indicated by the append ed press notices, and their current sea eon promises even more gratifying results.
